An action-packed outcry against humankind's destruction of planet earth in general and the issues of the fishing industry in particular.

Nora is fed up with standing by while earth is going to hell around her. When the opportunity arises, she takes a stand – which lands her with community service and a stint on a fishing boat in Canada. There, she immediately clashes with the young captain Johan; her strong opinions and environmental activism setting the two at odds with each other. When an unexpectedly severe hurricane hits the fishing boat, the lives of the crew of four are turned on their heads. Lost at open sea, exposed to the elements and with hardly any provisions, will Nora and Johan overcome their differences to stay alive – and will it be enough to save them?

Author: Christoph Scheuring, born in 1957, has seen a lot in his life. As a journalist for major German newspapers and magazines, such as Der Spiegel, Stern and Die Zeit, he sat at the same table as the most powerful leaders and those powerless living on the streets. His passion belongs to the adolescents living on the fringes of our society. As an author, he writes about life where it is fragile, where it frays, where it hurts. Where it starts to be interesting.
