A beautifully illustrated story of friendship and helpfulness with factual information.

Island rat Ebby and rabbit captain Flo live on neighbouring islands in the middle of the North Sea. They both love their homes very much; the only thing they are missing is a friend to share their little paradises with. When they discover each other across the water, they are overjoyed. Now they only have to figure out how to cross the sea to reach each other … Having managed just that, they come up with a plan to share their island love even further: A guesthouse with a seagull taxi shuttling between their islands. When their first visitors, a seal mum with her little pup, arrive, their quiet and steady island life is turned on its head.

Creative People:

Author: Kristina Scharmacher-Schreiber studied German in Münster and Bergamo and afterwards worked for big opera houses for many years. Since 2016, she has been working as an author and translator and has published a number of children's books. For her nonfiction works, she has received a number of awards. When she's not working on a new book, she enjoys spending her time at her favourite place, a small island amidst the rough North Sea.

Illustrator: Caroline Opheys graduated in communication design and worked for different advertising agencies afterwards, until she fell in love with illustration. While drawing, she enjoys listening to music or a podcast and looks for inspiration in nature or at a café. She lives in Düsseldorf.
