A board book in rhyme with a twist: the train doesn't go around the world but through a zoo!

Emil has heard of a wondrous train that goes across the globe. When he catches a ride, the rumours seem to prove true: Here's the African steppe with sleepy lions and over there are monkeys hanging from lianas in the South American jungle. And are that penguins at the South Pole further along the tracks? This can't possibly be a real train – can it?

Creative People:

Author: Norman Klaar was born in the beautiful Rhineland in-between the then capital city Bonn and the cathedral city Cologne in 1980. Today, he writes books for children and tries teaching himself how to draw.

Illustrator: Karsten Teich was born in Hannoversch Münden in 1967. He studied art at the College of Art in Kassel and has been illustrating children's books, among them the beloved Cowboy Klaus, for several publishers since 2001. He draws, writes and lives with his family in Berlin. Such a Long Car Queue is his first board book.
