A child's perspective on dementia.

Mia lives in Hamburg with her family. When one of the flats in their building becomes vacant, her parents decide to move Mia's great-grandfather in who suffers from dementia. Mia loves her Great-Grandpapa and is unperturbed by the fact that he is becoming increasingly forgetful. Now she can remind him how you tie shoelaces and that you don't clean your teeth with hand cream. But Great-Grandpapa is not alone – a mysterious boy keeps appearing. He calls himself Berti and seems a bit old-fashioned ...

Creative People:

Author: Uticha Marmon, born in 1979, studied dramaturgy, literary studies and education science in Mainz, Vienna and Munich. After being a dramatic advisor in theatres, she worked as an editor and producer for an audio book publisher for several years. Since 2010 she has been a freelance author and editor with emphasis on children's media. She lives in Hamburg.

Illustrator: Günther Jakobs studied illustration/design and philosophy in Münster. He has been working as a freelance illustrator and writer for almost 15 years, mostly at the "Ateliers Hafenstraße" at the old goods station. Picture books are his passion. He loves putting his own ideas and stories on paper. His three children are his motivation, inspiration and often his most important critics.
