

Fritz Fassbinder

Rocky, the Gangsters and I or How Math Saved My Life (for Real!)

Volume 1

black and white illustrated by Sonja Kurzbach

Recommended Age: 10+

Children's

Hardcover, 176 Pages

15,3 x 21,5 cm

€ 13,00 (D)

ISBN 978-3-7348-4115-6

18 January 2018

Further information here

Thrilling criminal adventures told from a human and an animal perspective.

At the local shelter, Felix meets police dog Rocky, who just failed his annual detection dog test. The two befriend each other, but unfortunately, Felix doesn't really speak police dog and Rocky doesn't get civilian, which has them totally misunderstand each other leading to all sorts of adventures. Like the one they ran into the open arms of a gang of thieves. Or the one they accidentally found the gun of a bank robber on the loose ...

Creative People:

Author: Fritz Fassbinder had been travelling the world with the 'Schulschiff Deutschland', the last full-rigged ship of the German merchant shipping, for two years before studying telecommunications. He has worked abroad and for a spacelab mission of the European Space Agency. Today, he works in the police environment, which motivated him to write a crime story for children. In his free time, he reads and writes, climbs steep mountains or runs the New York City Marathon.

Sonja Kurzbach was born in East Frisia in 1983. She completed an apprenticeship in graphic design in Bremen before moving to Berlin in 2013 when she won a scholarship for the Academy of Illustration and Design. Since graduating in illustration design in 2017, she has been working as a freelance illustrator and part-time employee at a design and communication agency in Bremen. You can find her work online at shortriver.de.

