A heart-warming and endearing tale of friendship and helpfulness with lovable characters.

Minnie Piminy loves to assist anyone who asks for her help. The inhabitants of the pleasant little village know that her workshop is full of wonders and speedy fixes and gladly come to her with their problems. Everything could be perfect if it weren't for trim cousin Kim, who always turns up her fine nose at Minnie. No wonder Minnie is much surprised when Kim is standing in front of her workshop one day asking for help: Her houseguest, the lovely wraith Ms Flowercrown, has fallen ill. Will Minnie be able to help her? And will that bring the cousins closer together?

Creative People:

Author: Kristina Scharmacher-Schreiber studied German in Münster and Bergamo and afterwards worked for big opera houses for many years. Since 2016, she has been working as an author and translator and has published a number of children's books. For her nonfiction works, she has received a number of awards. When she's not working on a new book, she enjoys spending her time at her favourite place, a small island amidst the rough North Sea.

Illustrator: Caroline Opheys graduated in communication design and worked for different advertising agencies afterwards, until she fell in love with illustration. While drawing, she enjoys listening to music or a podcast and looks for inspiration in nature or at a café. She lives in Düsseldorf.
