A witty story of family ties, first love and learning to stand up for oneself and follow one's dreams with a relatable protagonist.

Chaos reigns in Lil's family: five siblings, a dog, an au-pair girl and two scatterbrained parents demand Lil's around-the-clock attention. And as if she didn't have enough to think about already, there's the new boy who's moved in across the street and a fashion design competition. But when her father starts to behave very strangely, a graffiti based on one of her drawings appears on her school's wall, her little sister goes missing in Berlin, and the move to Cambridge is approaching, she's suddenly rather glad that she's not an only child after all ...

Creative People:

Author: Stephanie Gessner grew up in a small village in Rhineland-Palatinate surrounded by meadows and woods. In her childhood, she started to collect beautiful, strange, and funny words and turned them into her own stories. Later on, she studied literature, wrote travel reports for magazines, and is now working as a copywriter, though she loves nothing better than writing novels, short stories, and picture books for children. She lives in Mainz with her family.
