The wild beauty of a long forgotten garden mixed with an exciting race against time addressing topics of animal welfare and nature protection.

Ruby cannot wait to spend her summer at Redmoor Gardens with her cool uncle Leo. She immediately falls in love with the ragged, forgotten garden slowly being brought back from its deep slumber. The only thing dampening her mood is Paul. Paul, who comes between Ruby and Leo, who knows everything better, who is constantly at odds with her. Fortunately, Ruby soon has a project to distract her: a little owl needs her help. But then owls start attacking visitors – visitors Redmoor desperately needs to continue. Can Ruby figure out what is going on and protect the owls before it's too late?

Creative People:

Author: Ruth Rahlff, born in Lüneburg, tried herself as a sales talent in her uncle's bookshop at an early age. Later on, she apprenticed in publishing, worked in a very big and a very small publishing house as an editor, and has been working as a freelance author since 2004. When she's not reading, travelling, eating ice cream, or romping about with her dog, she makes up stories for children and young adults.
