A summer road trip through Europe about finding oneself and coming to terms with loss.

July can't take it any longer. She has to get away from her overbearing parents who think they know what's best for her – except they really don't! Her escape is cut short when she finds a boy washed up on the shore. He has no memory of his past, can't even remember his name. July sees her hopes validated: If the ocean brought back this boy, her twin sister Mira, who disappeared at sea three years ago, could still be out there somewhere as well! Together with the puzzling boy, whom she names August, July soon finds herself on a daring summer road trip through Europe, not knowing what, if anything, they will find ...
