This large-scale non-fiction picture book invites its readers to be more mindful of nature and the environment with poetic texts and atmospheric illustrations.

Life is often so busy that we forget to take pause and appreciate all the small wonders surrounding us. So how about we slow down and explore nine different habitats – the forest, meadow, lake, river, sea, mountains, city, park, and garden? Let's walk barefoot along the beach, collect stones at the riverside, observe tiny animals that live in the garden, or make art with leaves and other natural resources one can find in the forest! There are so many options to connect with nature.

Creative People:

Author: Johanna Prinz has a PhD in biology. She was a monkey researcher at a zoo, the head of the educational department of a large museum of natural history and later on a national park house at the Wadden Sea. Today, she works from her home of choice, Lübeck, in the area of nature communication and is a consultant for museums and an author of children's non-fiction books. Sometimes, she picks up earthworms from the street.

Illustrator: Marc Pattenden already loved to draw as a child, but it wasn't until the birth of his son that he rediscovered his love of doodling. Since then, he has been working full-time as an illustrator. He lives in Lewes, East Sussex. He works digitally and loves to create bright worlds – full of different textures and atmosphere.
